MRS. ELIZA D. WILDER DEAD

Mrs. Eliza D. Wilder, an aged and greatly esteemed lady, died at 8:15 o'clock Wednesday night at her residence on the peninsula. She had been in poor health for a long time and her death was due to old age and physical exhaustion, she being 79 years old.

Mrs. Wilder was a native of New England, but came to Florida from Cincinnati over 20 years ago, with her husband, Fay Wilder, and three sons, Parker H., Stephen H. and C. Morris Wilder. Her husband was drowned by the capsizing of a boat in Indian River several years ago, but the three sons still survive her. Only Stephen was with her when she died.

The remains were prepared for burial by Bingham & Males and shipped to Cincinnati yesterday for interment. Stephen Wilder accompanied the remains.

CARPENTERS ORGANIZE

Last Monday night the various tradesmen of Daytona met at the Armory to listen to an address by R. L. Harper, State organizer for the American Federation of Labor.

There were probably 200 workmen present and they seemed anxious to hear the views of the speaker, and to learn something as to whether labor organizations were beneficial or not.

Many of the mechanics of Daytona are natives—men who have had little or no experience in labor union affairs, and the speaker found it necessary to be very explicit. But he was equal to the occasion and made a very conservative speech.

He told them that it was useless for men to look for recognition and better conditions all at once; that in many cases labor organizations have found it hard to improve wage conditions even after years of organization.

"Trade Unionism," said Mr. Harper, "does not mean antagonism to the bosses; it does not mean that there should be bad feeling between employer and employee. On the contrary, it means a better understanding between bosses and workmen; a better and more conservative view of the rights of both employer and employee—a community of interests that is beneficial alike to both."

He spoke at length on the benefits that are usually derived by the labor organizations where harmony and conservatism prevail, and warned them against the harmful effects of radicalism.

"Do not think," said he, "that you are being organized for the purpose of a strike. The strike is the evil of labor combination, and should never be resorted to save as a last resort, a measure that must come when every appeal to reason and common sense has been exhausted to obtain your rights. The rights of labor are equal with the rights of capital. When you have once fixed a reasonable scale of wages, and the contractor has agreed to pay it, there can not reasonably be any cause for trouble or dissatisfaction."

The contractors can and will then figure upon a job from a fixed basis, and know just what the labor will cost him.

The lumber dealer and the brick maker has a fixed price for the materials, which is regulated by the law of supply and demand, and with the rate of wage fixed, there is no reason why any contractor should fall down in business by reason of a labor union."

After Mr. Harper's speech, the carpenter's organization a union with the following officers and members.

President—A. Douglas.
Vice President—Lloyd Shoemaker.
Treasurer—George P. Johnson.
Financial Sec'y—H. C. Quattlebaum.
Recording Sec'y—E. H. Shoenker.
We understand that S. H. Gove and R. F. Hough, who are two of the largest contractors in Daytona, are both pleased with the outlook and think that the move means better workmen and more satisfaction in every way with the class of work done.

There is no good reason that the Gazette-News can see why this movement should not redound to the benefit of all classes of people and all parties concerned.

Organization is the skeleton of the age in which we live. The capitalists are organized, the professions are organized, the churches, the lawyers, the doctors, the merchants, the bankers, and in short every recognized method of gaining a livelihood is organized upon a plan of common right to a fair share of the business opportunities which the market of the world offer to human competition.

MRS. L. C. HOLDEN DEAD

Mrs. L. C. Holden, a most estimable and charitable Christian lady died of heart disease about 2:30 o'clock last Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. R. Morgan, on North Palm-tree avenue.

Mrs. Holden, who owned the home where she died, was in the yard supervising the planting of some shrubbery and flowers, when she suddenly staggered and fell to the ground. Some one ran to her assistance, but before they could get her into the house she was dead.

An hour before her death, she ate a hearty dinner and was as well and cheerful as usual.

The deceased was about 71 years old and a native of Michigan, but has made Florida her home for the last quarter of a century.

She leaves two daughters, who are now in Michigan, and one son, John Holden, a resident of Orlando.

Mrs. Holden was possessed of some means, which she used very charitably. She was largely instrumental in the building of the beautiful Baptist church, adjoining the place where she died, and we understand left a will donating the Morgan residence to the church as a parsonage.

The funeral took place Thursday afternoon from the Baptist church and was largely attended. Rev. J. D. Blocker of Sanford preached a short and very appropriate sermon and the remains were taken to the north-bound evening train and shipped to Michigan for interment. Her only son accompanied the remains North.

A DARKTOWN INCIDENT

The 400 of Waycross were greatly startled on Friday night of last week when a well known tragedy.

While a well known tragedy was in progress, a darktown belle of the town came in mortal collision. It seems from the evidence given in "Squire Cox's court" Saturday morning that one of the darktown belles, known as Miss Virginia Blank, was too free with her smiles and favors. She is a new social luminary in Waycross, having recently come from Mobile, Ala., where she was a leader of the 400 and the admired and envied belle of the Cotton State.

She made engagements with Frank Cunningham and George Higgins for the same dance and both of them claimed her favor at the same time. She found some difficulty in playing the double role and the gentlemen proceeded to fight it out on the spot.

Higgins used a knife or a razor, and slashed Cunningham across the stomach, inflicting an ugly and dangerous wound. The wounded man was put in a hack and brought into town, where Dr. Seelye dressed his wound. Higgins, who did the cutting, escaped to Seabreeze, where he is employed as a hotel porter. Early Saturday morning, City Marshal Zuber went over to the hotel and arrested him. He resisted at first but when the marshal put a 44 at his ear and put the handcuffs on him, he became very docile and came over to court without further trouble. Magistrate Cox bound him over to the grand jury in the sum of $500.

He failed to get a bond and was later taken to the county jail at DeLand.

HACKMAN GOES TO LAW

As a side issue to the stabbing affray at the ball, Edward Bison, a hackman, had Henry Glover arrested Wednesday for failure to pay for the hack in which Cunningham was brought to the doctor Friday night.

Before the Mayor, Glover denied that he had ordered the hack and said that Bison had volunteered to bring the wounded man in.

Bison could not prove that Glover had hired the hack and the mayor dismissed the case.
